The New Normal Ranch Market is Healthy and Gaining

By: Alex Maher
Ranch sales volumes have been steady over the last 18 months, running at approximately 50% of the peak volumes seen in 2006-2007, largely devoid of developers, speculators and those using excessive leverage for ranch acquisitions. The market has essentially returned to its normal pace with a Buyer pool of agricultural and cattle operators, legacy or “end user families” and continued institutional investing. With healthy volumes, we now have the sales data in most valleys to accurately conduct current valuations. According to First Interstate Bank in Jackson Hole, the residential appraisers are no longer “checking the box” for a declining market on appraisal reports, a further sign of market stability and potentially a bottom for values. We’ve also experienced competitive bidding on multiple transactions over the past four months and anticipate a continuation of that trend for certain high quality tracts given current negotiations as such.

We are proud of our track record as local Rocky Mountain economies emerged from the recession over the past two years. In 2011, for the second year in a row, Live Water Properties sold 26 ranches, 22 of which were Live Water listings, and 10 of which had significant agricultural and/or cattle income components. Despite the attention national media is giving to the bubble concerns with rapidly escalating farm values across the country, we’ve successfully identified and sold potato, grain and cattle operations in several areas of the Rockies at a fraction of irrigated farm prices in Kansas, Iowa and other mid-western states. Given ample current inventory, we believe these regions will continue to offer competitive pricing for farm and ranch investments in 2012.

The ranch market showed an uptick in activity for us towards the close of the 2011 with over $29M in volume closing in the last 45 days plus an additional $24M pending for January 2012 closings. With more rational pricing and valuations post-correction, and an increase in financially-qualified, savvy Buyers, we are optimistic the ranch market will continue on a healthy pace with sustainable growth rates in 2012. It is important to keep in mind, many of the best opportunities are not officially on the market given confidentiality requirements. Please contact our Brokers to discuss those opportunities that may be a match for your interests.

Turpin Meadow Ranch - Jackson, Wyoming
Located in the Buffalo Valley of Jackson Hole, Wyoming, Turpin Meadow Ranch is situated 13 miles from Moran Junction and is within 8 miles of Grand Teton National Park. The 32-acre ranch sits on the Buffalo Fork of the Snake River and is within ¾ mile of the Teton Wilderness boundary. Current permits encompass several million acres with access to the Bridger-Teton National Forest, Teton
Wilderness, Grand Teton National Park, Yellowstone National Park and Shoshone National Forest. Operation began in 1928, and today it is one of the longest continuously operating dude ranches in Jackson Hole plus one of the few in the Greater Yellow Ecosystem to have all approvals from the US Forest Service to completely rebuild and replace existing improvements with new log construction. The approved development plan provides the footprint for an expansion of a five-star ranch and winter lodge. The plan grants the construction of eight 4-suite log cabins, a 5,000 sqft dining lodge, a 10,000 sqft main lodge, 2 homes for staff, a new tack building, an indoor/outdoor pool and recreation building, employee housing and a new barn/shop. The resort currently has 13 cabins, a main lodge, main shop, employee housing, general manager's house and tack building. Capacity is 40 people depending on the utilization. Turpin Meadow Ranch is a full-service guest ranch offering secluded rustic cabins and fantastic views of the Teton Mountains with a vacation experience families will cherish forever.

A Conservation Highlight of 2011 - Fisher Bottom Sale

Last year Live Water Properties’ Associate Broker, Tate Jarry, worked collaboratively with the owners of the Fisher Bottom Ranch and The Conservation Fund in the successful sale of the Fisher Bottom Ranch in Bonneville County, Idaho. The ranch consists of 431 deeded acres, 2 miles of Snake River frontage and vital wildlife habitat at the significant halfway point of the South Fork of the Snake River Canyon.

This successful transaction marks the inaugural partnership with The Conservation Fund, a national land protection nonprofit organization committed to projects that balance environmental and economic goals. To date “The Fund” has been involved in the preservation of 20,000 acres in the Upper Snake River area and other critical areas throughout our region of the Rocky Mountain West. We invite our readers to learn more about their exciting work.

The Conservation Fund launched in 1985 as a smart solution to an old problem: how to balance environmental and economic goals. Since inception as a small, savvy nonprofit, The Conservation Fund has helped save land in all 50 states – 7 million acres – with a nimble, skilled team of real estate, finance and conservation planning professionals. Because The Fund keeps its operations as lean as possible, they have an excellent record for direct program spending and the lowest fundraising costs in their field. With a commitment to stretching every donation, The Conservation Fund consistently earns top rankings for efficiency by review groups such as Charity Navigator and the American Institute of Philanthropy.

In Idaho and beyond, every project of The Conservation Fund has environmental and economic value, from protecting "working" forests, ranches and recreation destinations that provide local revenue to helping communities grow their infrastructure thoughtfully.

If you’d like to learn more about The Conservation Fund, please visit the website or call Mark Elsbree, based in Sun Valley, Idaho, at (208) 726-4419.

Live Water Welcomes New Agent Jack McInerney

Jack McInerney arrives at Live Water after 25 years in the financial service industry, the most recent beginning in 1998 with D.A. Davidson in Livingston, Montana. During the past twenty years in Livingston, Jack and his wife Alice have purchased and improved “neglected” fishing and hunting properties in central and western Montana. Lessons learned by developing the fisheries, bird and big game habitats achieved Jack's excellent eye for both improving the diamond in the rough and polishing the already beautiful gem. Improving these properties has also been an opportunity to gain knowledge about Montana water rights and conservation issues that impact landowners in many different river basins.

Growing up on the Greenfield Irrigation Project and in the community of Fairfield in northern Montana was heaven for a youngster with a passion for waterfowl and pheasant hunting. Involvement in the operation of the successful family irrigated grain farm has been insightful as to the impact and benefit that agriculture can have on wildlife habitat. A hunting trip on the Rocky Mountain Front with a brother and brother-in-law as a teenager brought about Jack's first elk encounter and began the lifelong addiction with rifle and bow.

Jack graduated from the University of Montana with a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration with the thought of returning home to farm. Just two years later he had an opportunity to enter the securities business that led to experiences in Massachusetts, California and lastly Washington State (where he met his wife Alice), before loading the wagon back to Montana and the Upper Yellowstone. The McInerneys call the Shields River Valley and the communities of Clyde Park and Wilsall home while raising three daughters, Michael Ann, Kristy and Casey, who are active partners in frequent outdoor adventures.

Legacy Spring Creek Ranch - Springfield, Idaho

This 671-acre ranch is arguably the finest waterfowl property in the entire state of Idaho. It is located 2.5 hours from Jackson Hole, Wyoming, 2 hours from Driggs, Idaho, and 2.5 hours from Salt Lake City. Legacy Spring Creek ranch has over 3 miles of spring creeks located next to the 56,000-acre American Falls Reservoir in Springfield, Idaho. This combination coupled with a productive agricultural component and with the ability to grow key food crops, creates the perfect storm for record numbers of ducks and geese. It is not uncommon to see thousands of mallards and Canada geese loafing on the spring-fed creek systems and grain fields. An array of both game and non-game birds frequent the ranch including Widgeon, Teal, Gadwall, Canvasback and diving ducks. The ranch harbors a robust wild pheasant population to keep any bird hunter occupied after a morning in the blind. For the angler, large trout in excess of 30” cruise these waterways and provide a size class of fish rarely seen in a wild system. The most prominent species are rainbow and cutt-bows, and massive brown trout have been caught on the property. This turnkey operation offers a 5-bedroom home, a garage/shop with gunroom and bird cleaning facilities, plus equipment necessary to enjoy the Legacy Spring Creek Ranch immediately.
