The Capital Gain Tax Rate Change for 2011 Will Present Challenges for Sellers

Written By: John Muir

As we look ahead to 2011, the federal government will allow the capital gains tax rate for individuals in the 28% Ordinary Income Tax Class or above, to increase from 15% to 20%, a 33.3% increase over 2010. Historically, rises in the capital gains tax rate have tended to slow economic growth and reinvestment. This condition is known as the “lock-in effect” where investors avoid taxation by holding appreciated assets.

For ranch Sellers, one way to gain momentum before this occurs is to candidly look at the price points set on the property and offer a discount where appropriate. In order to be effective, this discount should be large enough to garner action within the first 90 days. If the timing of price reductions is delayed toward the end of the year it may force a Seller into further discounts and a negative “double dip” for resulting net proceeds due to the compounding of lower prices and higher gains tax. Buyers negotiating near year-end may try to discount the purchase price an additional 3-4% based upon the argument they will save the Seller the 5% tax increase by closing in 2010.

Given the increase in cash Buyers roaming the marketplace in search of the right ranch at the right price, we recommend serious Sellers act now on appropriate price adjustments for optimal market positioning ahead of this upcoming issue.

Flyway Ranch - Craig, Montana

Just 25 miles as the crow flies from the Rocky Mountain Front, Flyway Ranch lies equidistant between Great Falls and Helena, Montana, along the fabled Missouri River. The 160-acre ranch was purchased in 1993 and has been meticulously updated and improved to become not just a prime wildlife refuge, but a place where residents and their guests can enjoy privacy and seclusion while having access to two cities with endless outdoor and cultural opportunities. The ranch sits at 3200’ in elevation, enjoying mild winters and easy access all months of the year. For the avid outdoorsmen, the Flyway Ranch boasts over a mile of prime fishing on the blue-ribbon, tailwater Missouri River, where there are thousands of fish per mile. The Flyway Ranch also has prime habitat for ducks, geese, Hungarian partridge, pheasants and deer. Most remarkably, the ranch boasts views of pristine mountains and ranchland. There are no houses visible from the ranch, which is highly unusual on such a popular trout river. The property is protected with a conservation easement and is an integral part of the conservation corridor that stretches approximately 10 miles along the Missouri River. Elk and antelope herds are often visible and occasionally bear come down from the mountains to eat chokecherries in August. The property boasts an apple orchard, a freshwater pond, an original farmhouse that was updated in 1995, a four bedroom, high-end guest lodge and several outbuildings.

Hyalite Reserve - Bozeman, Montana

Located in the northeast part of Montana’s Gallatin Valley, the Hyalite Reserve is a truly distinctive piece of property with live water, wildlife, and spectacular mountain views. With its creek-side house site and over one-third mile of Hyalite Creek flowing through the property, you’ll feel like you’ve found your own special piece of Montana at last. And, at an affordable price. Hyalite Creek winds through the east end of this 26.75-acre parcel, drawing in wildlife and birds. A buck-and-rail fence was recently constructed on the west boundary, and the Reserve’s 20 acres of hay and grain fields were recultivated and reseeded with alfalfa and grass in the spring of 2010. With its sweet honey holes, Hyalite Creek offers seasonal fishing during the summer and fall as fish migrate up from the confluence with the Gallatin River, just downstream. For hunters, thick cover along the creek affords good hunting for pheasants and Hungarian partridge, and waterfowling for ducks and geese can also be superb. Take a good look at this offering—Hyalite Reserve could be the opportunity to acquire your own piece of creek-front heaven in the Gallatin Valley.
